This was the scene of an Arlington couple's suicide pact yesterday which apparently cost the life of the husband. Roy N. Willingham of Vienna, Va., at left, was seated at this spot on the Virginia side of the Potomac at Great Falls when he saw James A. Woodbury and his wife, both 32, sitting on a rock (A). He turned his head, then looked back in time to see the man topple in the water. Mrs. Woodbury was not visible to him then. A moment later he saw Woodbury attempt to grasp another rock (B) and then float by at (C). Soon afterward Willingham saw Mrs. Woodbury emerge from the water at (D) and helped her up the rocky bank.
